

Corrigan Electric is proud to announce its very own Troy Corrigan as the recipient of the IEC Apprenticeship Alumni of the Year for 2017. The award was given during the annual IEC convention held in Phoenix, AZ. Troy's efforts volunteering to improve the electrical industry in Kentucky and Southern Indiana along with his National efforts thru the electrical and building industry were recognized with this prestigious award.

"Troy Corrigan is among the best of the best," said IEC National CEO Spenser Villwock. "As our 2017 IEC National Apprenticeship Alumni of the Year award winner, Troy has illustrated his aptitude, talent, and business acumen to be top of the line. He raised himself to national notoriety of the over 200,000 professionals IEC has educated in the electrical and systems contracting industry over the past 60 years. Quite simply, Troy is awesome!"

"Troy does none of these things for glory or awards, that's probably why I feel so strongly the he deserves this recognition. He was inspired 18 years ago by the IEC as a student and he now leads the IEC with that same enthusiasm. As Troy would say 'It's all for the IEC Nation' after all #WeAreIEC!" This was written by IEC Executive Director of KY & So. IN- Dan Endris in his nomination of Troy for this prestigious award.
